

Name _____

Date _____

Sara Helps Herself

Sara is doing her homework. She is solving Math problems that her teacher had given to her. It was a list of 10 complex questions that she had to complete that day. She did the first 5 quickly but didn't know how to do the 6th one.

She went to her mom. "Can you help me with this, please?" she said. But her mom was too busy with her baby sister.

Next, she went to her dad. "Can you help me with this, please?" she said. But her dad was too busy reading the newspaper.

Now she went to her brother. "Can you help me with this, please?" she said. But her brother was too busy making a model airplane.

"I think I will have to do it myself", she said. She read the question again and again and tried to solve it. After several attempts, she finally got to the correct answer!

She was very happy with herself. Also, she learnt a valuable lesson that we must help our own selves rather than depending upon others.

Sara Helps Herself

Answer the following questions.

1. What is Sara doing?

2. Whom did she ask for help?

3. Her father and mother were

4. Her brother was

5. What did she do in the end?

6. What lesson did you learn from this?

7. complex

- a. simple
- b. difficult
- c. expensive
- d. interesting

8. valuable

- a. real
- b. precious
- c. hide
- d. gift