

A conditional phrase is a condition of something happening. Conditionals talk about both real and unreal situations in the present and future tense.

A third conditional is about the past time and describes something that is unreal or contrary to fact.

For example: Sean passed his exam, but if he had failed he would have had to repeat the class next semester.

Finish these third conditionals.

1. _____ Jack had missed his bus he would be late for school again.
2. _____ Mary had fallen off the top of the monkey bars she would have hurt her head.
3. She would have hurt herself _____ she had not been wearing her seatbelt.
4. You _____ your hand if you had caught that fast-ball.
