

A conditional phrase is a condition of something happening. Conditionals talk about both real and unreal situations in the present and future tense.

A first conditional is about the future time and describes something that is likely to happen.

For example: You will pass the test if you study regularly.

Finish these first conditionals using "if" or "when".

1. Everyone will cheer _____ you score a goal.
2. _____ you clean your room, we will go to the store.
3. _____ I find the missing money, I will return it.
4. _____ you rollerblade, you will fall down.
5. _____ we are late to the movies, we miss the previews which are my favorite part.
6. The kids will laugh _____ you make balloon animals.
