

A simple sentence has one independent clause, or one group of words that can stand alone and expresses a complete thought. A simple sentence can have a compound subject or predicate. Example: The dog and cat slept soundly on the rug. We skipped and ran through the fields.

Combine the two subjects (using a conjunction) to make a compound subject in each simple sentence.

1. Jane liked mathematics.
Mary liked mathematics.

---

2. The blue truck raced around the track.
The yellow truck raced around the track.

---

3. The pillows do not look good in this room.
The couch does not look good in this room.

---

4. Zucchini is good for you.
Broccoli is good for you.

---

5. I won an award.
My sister won an award.

---