

Future Perfect Tense

Future perfect tense expresses actions that a speaker thinks, feels or assumes will have happened or completed in the future. It expresses the completion of things to occur in future.

To construct a future perfect tense, all you need is to add "will" plus "have" to the past participle of the verb.

Examples:

I will have eaten by two.

I won't have danced before he plays a song.

By this time next year, I will have built a new house.
