

Future Continuous Tense

Future perfect tense expresses actions that will begin at a particular period/ time and continue for a period of time in future. It expresses future actions that have ongoing attributes/ features.

Constructing a future continuous tense is easy, all you need is to add the "will be" to a present participle (ing form) of the verb.

Examples:

I will be eating pizza by two.

She will be leaving tomorrow morning.

I will not be dancing until he plays a new song.
